

Grief Support Community Resources

One of the biggest changes in life comes when someone we cherish leaves us through death. Grief is a reaction to losing someone. We all have experienced those losses throughout our lives. We all know grief, in our unique, personal way. Yet grief is something that connects us, as we all experience it. It is neither bad nor immoral, and cannot be processed by someone else.

The friend who can be silent with us in a moment of despair or confusion, who can stay with us in an hour of grief and bereavement, who can tolerate not knowing, not curing, not healing and face with us the reality of our powerlessness, that is a friend who cares.

(Henri Nouwen, Out of Solitude)

We need to acknowledge that our grief has exacted its toll on us, but also appreciate what we have learned; understand that we can, and that those who cared about us want us to, move on.

PRAYER

And Jesus Wept

An All Souls Remembrance

Loving Jesus,
Compassionate Friend and
Comforter of Those Who Mourn,
please remember all of my departed
loved ones today, especially <N>.
Raise them up to eternal life and hold them in the palm of your hand.
Comfort me, O Lord,

And grant that I may have
Strength when I am in despair
Courage when I am weak
Trust when I am afraid
Faith when I am in doubt and
Love when I need it the most.
Fill me, O Lord,
with joyful hope in the knowledge that for all our faithful departed, life has changed, not ended.
And bring us all into the peace and joy of
Your presence for ever and ever.

AMEN.

Dealing With Grief

(Adopted from Canadian Cancer Society, www.cancer.ca)

Grieving can be a very painful and long process. Given time and support, you will begin to heal, accept the loss and adjust. There is no set time period for grieving. Most people find that their emotions and physical symptoms of grief start to lessen between 6 months and 2 years after their loved one has died.

To cope with grief, you can:

- Let yourself cry as often as you need. It is part of the healing process, not a sign of weakness.
- Allow yourself to feel sadness, pain, anger and any other emotions. Don't let others tell you what you should be feeling.
- Take care of yourself by eating well and exercising. Limit the amount of alcohol or other drugs you use.
- Be gentle with yourself. Forgive yourself for all the things that you may have said or done, or didn't say or do.
- Talk to and get support from others who have experienced a loss.
- Prepare for the emotions that may come up on birthdays, anniversaries and holidays.
- Take a break from grief – you don't need to be focused on it all the time. Go to a movie or concert, take a hot bath, read or listen to music.

Tears are the silent language of grief.
(Voltaire)

You are not alone on your journey of grief. The healing process is enhanced through the friendships and connections that may be developed within your parish community or in support groups.

This brochure offers a list of available community resources that may be beneficial for you. Please consider approaching your Parish Priest, Deacon or Parish Life Director for suggestions and help.

For additional grief support resources or for assistance in developing the faith based grief support group in your parish please contact us in the Ministry of Presence to the Sick and Elderly:

Chair: Deacon Stepan Bilynskyy, bilynsky@msn.com) or leave a message at the Pastoral Centre with Agata Johns at 204-594-0271.

Blessed are those who mourn, for they will be comforted.
